RABBI'S MESSAGE

Jewish survival is not simply about keeping the doors of the synagogue open. It's about transforming lives once people enter our doors. Thus, it is valuable to take a moment to examine the characteristics of a successful congregation. In a successful congregation, the feeling of warmth is palpable. You can see it in how people greet and talk to one another. People smile. People embrace. There is a true sense of community. Young and old are present, and all ages in between.

In successful congregations people acknowledge and appreciate each other's efforts and dedication to their synagogue. They continually welcome and train new leadership. The congregation and its professionals bind themselves together into a loving cooperative relationship that enhances the mission of the temple.

Successful congregations are inclusive communities. The needs of the institution and the needs of people are one and the same. The synagogue building is handicap-accessible. Special needs children are offered a quality Jewish education, are given every opportunity to succeed, and are even offered the opportunity to celebrate their b'nei and b'not mitzvah. Both clergy and lay leaders are sensitive to the wide variety of family constellations that exist within the community: single-family homes, blended families, gay couples, and so forth.

In a successful congregation, the work of Tikun Olam is always present. We fulfill our communal responsibilities as Jews. We protect our environment, feed the hungry, house the poor, and enhance inter-group relations. Social action is not about politics, it lies at the heart of what it means to be a Jew.

In a successful congregation, the worship experience is spiritually uplifting and takes into account the wide variety of tastes amongst its members. Clergy invite lay participation and encourage lay initiative. Sermons cover themes that are inspired by the Torah and respond to the inner yearnings of the congregants. Torah commentaries link the wisdom of the sacred text to the contemporary issues of the day.

In a successful congregation, lay leaders regularly attend services. They participate in Torah study and adult education classes. They exemplify in their personal conduct the ideals of our faith, knowing that their attitudes and actions have great impact on the quality of congregational life. Mean-spiritedness and lashon hara give way to generosity of the heart and words of encouragement. When speaking from the Bema, lay leaders are ever aware that the image they project sets the standard for future leadership.

In a successful congregation, education is not only for children, but for people of all ages, from day-care and parenting programs to family retreats and adult study classes. Jewish literacy enables and empowers us to make educated choices about how to live authentically as modern Jews. Is this not the essence of reform Judaism?

In successful congregations a large number of young people-join the synagogue youth groups and spend summers at URJ camps. Camps are the most effective means we have, not only to teach Torah, but to transmit a passion and excitement about being Jewish. There is no better way to build a positive and enduring Jewish identity than the experience of living as Jews with Jews, every moment of every day, for an extended period of time.

A successful congregation is a community which sees the big picture. The nuts and bolts of synagogue life exist to create a community of meaning. as we enter the new secular year, 2015, let us sustain a successful congregation in which God and Torah are at the center and which continues to meet the social, educational, and religious needs of our members. let us sustain a congregation which will fulfill its covenantal responsibility to all who seek a Jewish spiritual home—one that gives our lives meaning and moral purpose. It can be done and, with God's help, it will be done.

IRENE NEDELAY- OIL PAINTINGS

SIBERIANA

Irene Nedelay was born in Novosibirsk, Siberia, and lived there for 36 years, studying fine art and developing a distinctive approach to painting. Irene's "Siberian style" is influenced by various aspects of old Russian art, such as iconography and Siberian Lubok (naive pictures printed from the carved surface of woodblocks and colored by hand), and Parsuna (Russian portraits fashionable in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries).

Since the beginning of her artistic career, Irene was an opponent of the strict ideological frames of so-called "Soviet official art." After graduating from the Art Institute of Novosibirsk University with a master's degree in fine art, she chose a career as an independent artist, without ties to any Soviet associations. In the years of Gorbachev's perestroika, Irene became an active member of an underground movement of young artists and poets. One could stumble across her paintings in such unexpected places as school halls and underground youth clubs. She became widely known in 2000 through her first one-woman show in Novosibirsk, which was sponsored by the Soros Foundation. In 2002, Irene moved to Saint Petersburg, where she embarked on a career as a professional artist. In 2007, her first western European solo show was held in Wiesbaden, Germany.

In 2009, Irene moved to the United States and started painting in her own studio in Staten Island. From 2010- 2014 Irene has had more than thirty solo and group shows in the US, Russia, the United Kingdom, and Germany. In 2011, she won the JP Morgan Chase Arts in our Communities Grant for Developing Russian and Siberian Art and became a member of the National Association of Women Artists. In 2012, she was awarded The Audrey Hope Shirk Memorial Award for Works on Canvas. In 2013, she won the NAWA Medal of Honor & the Elizabeth Stanton Blake Memorial Award for works on canvas.

Nedelay's work evokes her biography. The magical world glimpsed in these images conveys the artist's love of her homeland and respect for its visual traditions, in a unique, personal style. The stories Nedelay paints are rooted in the history of the Siberian people to whom she has devoted her art.

Many of Ms. Nedelay's pieces are for sale with a portion of the proceeds being donated to the Hebrew Tabernacle. A price list is available.

LETTER FROM VICE PRESIDENT /BUILDING MANAGER

RUMMAGE SALE A HUGE SUCCESS

This year the Rummage Sale had more customers than ever before. A line started forming two hours before the event began and when the doors opened it looked like Black Friday. The checkout counter had a long line from opening time through 2 PM. I want to thank the many volunteers and our awesome custodial staff who worked so hard to make this annual event a huge success.

PLANTINGS

On a windy Sunday in November, I supervised two Hebrew school students, Julia Klein and Daria Kolmogorova in planting a variety of bulbs around the perimeter of Hebrew Tabernacle. The bulbs should be a lovely enhancement to our building when springtime rolls around.

I want to wish everyone a healthy, happy and prosperous secular New Year!

Mike Klein, Vice President and Building Manager

We are fond of saying, "There is always something going on at the Hebrew Tabernacle." That phrase now means more than ever before! The HT calendar was packed in 2014; our Licensing Committee has had its hands full of long and short-term rentals for a wide variety of community events. 2015 looks like another busy year. If you are contemplating holding an event at HT, check our website calendar and contact the office early, so you won't be disappointed.

HT SECURES A GRANT FROM THE NEW YORK LANDMARKS CONSERVANCY

December 8, 2014 was a major milestone date on which I signed a contract with Sleszynski Corp. The work for this contract, a huge step in the preservation of our building, will consist of two major components. The first, already in progress, is installing a Litsco cladding system on our main upper roof over our coping stone and inboard parapet walls. When this work is complete it will prevent water from penetrating these areas. The second component is removing and replacing the roof at the northeast corner of the building directly over the Fort Washington Avenue stairway. Work will also be performed on the roof drain. The contract is being carefully monitored by Mary Kay Judy, a consultant from the Architectural and Cultural Heritage Conservation. This effort is the culmination of nearly two years of work: applying for the grant, doing site surveys, holding meetings, winning the grant, developing the scope of work, reviewing contract documents and drawings, putting the contract out to bid, and selecting the contractor. All this hard work secured a grant worth $71,000. The Grant Committee consists of Joan Laufer, Paul Glassman and myself. We are hopeful that we'll be able to secure additional grants to address other building projects.

IN MEMORIAM

In grateful memory of the departed whose names are taken from the records of Hebrew Tabernacle and Beth Am and which appear on a separate weekly Yahrzeit list. It is our minhag to read Yahrzeit names at the Shabbat services following the date. If you would like a name read, please call the office in the preceding week.
