RABBI'S MESSAGE

Just a few months ago, another mass killing rocked our nation to the core. This time, twenty six people, the majority of whom were elementary school children, were shot in cold blood in Newtown, Connecticut. President Obama grimly remarked that four times during his presidency, he was forced to console grieving communities who were victims of mass murder. The most recent is particularly tragic because it involved the murder of innocent children

The grim reality is that we are a gun-toting society whose value system resembles that of the Wild West. Gun control legislation continues to be woefully inadequate. Senator Joe Lieberman points out that if a person goes into a licensed federal firearms dealer to buy a gun, there is a thorough background check. But, if the same person wishes to buy a gun from someone who is not licensed, or at a gun show, he or she doesn't have to be checked at all. What a gaping loophole!

Senator Lieberman also insists that assault weapons, such as what was used in Newtown, Connecticut, should also be banned. They were once developed by the US military as weapons of war. While the Second Amendment does protect the right to bear arms, such guns which can take out many people at a time, have no place in a private residence.

The National Rifle Association repeatedly reminds us of our constitutional right to bear arms and that rigorous gun control is a restriction of our personal freedom. This is a fallacious argument. No freedom is ever absolute. In democratic countries such as ours, the rights of the individual are constantly balanced against the needs and protection of society. The right to bear arms has been catastrophically abused for decades. It has been interpreted by many as an unbridled license to turn our cities into shooting galleries

Although I favor gun control measures, they do not provide a panacea for curbing violence in our country. We live in a society which glorifies violence. Both "reality television" and reality video games attract millions of customers. The video game, "Road Rage", particularly turns my stomach, as it legitimizes car-jacking and murder. Crime shows, which depict the mostly grisly forms of violence and continuously demonstrate man's inhumanity to man, have a formidable presence in the daily TV line-up. TV series like 24 or Homeland paint the picture of a grim world in which both protagonists and antagonists are as corrupt as the day is long. It is sometimes difficult to delineate who the real terrorists are. As a result of the invidiousness of murder and terrorism in the media, young TV and movie watchers and computer addicts are desensitized to violence. The subliminal message that is being given is that violence is a legitimate means of resolving conflicts.

Therefore, gun control measures are merely a bandage. The greater challenge is curbing the violence which exists in the human heart. Rabbi Jay C. Shoulson, the spiritual leader of Congregation Sons of Israel in Long Island City, emphasizes the importance of bringing back religion, family, and community. Young people need to be taught, both in schools and in the home, that violence is both a destructive and ineffective means of dealing with pain and anger.

Senator Lieberman directs us back to the Bible.

Violence is as old as Cain killing his brother, Abel. But God didn't accept that as a given and said to Cain, "where's your brother?" And Abel—Cain says, "am I my brother's keeper?" And God says, yes, I hear your brother's blood crying out to me from the ground.

And I think we've got to continue to hear the screams of these children, and see their blood, until we do something to try to prevent this from happening again.

I am deeply pleased that President Obama has placed gun control at the top of his agenda for his second term. Gun control, with all of its limitations, is about saving lives. Displaying empathy for those who are angry and in pain is about saving lives. Guiding our troubled youth and helping them to channel their hurt and frustration in constructive ways is about saving lives. In the words of the Talmud: "Whosoever preserves a single human soul, Scripture credits them as though they had saved whole world."

Mishloach Manot for Purim

Once again this Purim, many members of the community observed two of the mitzvot of Purim by sending about two hundred boxes of food to friends and neighbors in this annual fundraising effort to benefit our Hebrew School. This project was supported by the hard work of many people who gave generously of their time. A new feature this year was the baking of homemade hamantaschen in the HT kitchen in our brand new oven! Susan Blum and Diana Douglas led the baking on two different days joined by Eva Feist, Melanie and Julia Klein, Jessica Wolk-Stanley, and Emma Kushnirsky. They produced many dozens of delicious hamantaschen which were enjoyed by everyone. The pastries were such a hit that there were none left to sell at the Purim Carnival! CC Blackburn, Miriam Frank, Paula Loscocco, Susan Gellert and Sharon Silber also

Bar Mitzvah of Jesse Weiss

Jesse Weiss is a seventh grader at Bank Street School for Children. He loves snowboarding, listening to music, playing guitar, reading fantasy fiction, drawing and all sports. Jesse is particularly interested in science. His favorite sports teams are the Yankees, Giants, Rangers, and Knicks. He has a parakeet named Bluey. For the past few summers, Jesse has attended Camp Fuller in Wakefield Rhode Island where he has learned to sail (and where his father and two of his uncles went many years ago).

Over the past year, in preparation for his bar mitzvah, Jesse has visited a home-bound senior with DOROT, he has delivered meals on wheels to seniors, he has collected coats for the homeless and gathered and donated clothing and toys for families displaced by Hurricane Sandy who were staying in a shelter in our neighborhood, he gathered and donated books for a school that lost its library as a result of Sandy, he raked leaves in Fort Tryon Park to prevent storm drain blockage following Hurricane Sandy and he has volunteered with preschool children at Head Start. At the Mitzvah Day at our synagogue, he wrote cards for sick children and packed lunches for the homeless.

As part of his bar mitzvah service, he is participating in the Remember Us project which pairs each child having a bnai mitzvah with a child who died in the Holocaust before they could be bnai mitzvah. Jesse is honoring Boruch Feivush, a seven year old boy who died in the massacre of Jews in Keidan Lithuania on August 28, 1941.

Jesse's Hebrew name Yosef is in honor of two Josephs. His grandfather Joseph Silber was a Jewish Lithuanian physician who served as a battlefield surgeon in the Russian army during World War II and, after the war, defected from the Russian army to serve with US Navy intelligence (he also worked as a doctor with Jewish displaced persons.) Jesse is also named Yosef in honor of his grandmother Elaine Taleisnick Weiss's father, Joseph Taleisnick. Jesse's great-grandfather Joseph Taleisnick was an immigrant entrepreneur who founded the Brownsville News Company and delivered newspapers all over Brooklyn in the early years of the twentieth century using horse-drawn carriages, and, later, trucks.

ARTIST'S STATEMENT

I enjoy making art. The work in the show is part of my process of enjoying life. The work is in several media. I have been working in clay since high school. My first teacher taught us to work carefully with purpose. My next teacher, Beatrice Wood, instilled me with a sense of purpose and playfulness. I learned a great deal from Arthur Sennett and all the wonderful artists who shared their skill. Recently, Sylvia Netzer has helped me to grow to the point of feeling comfortable in showing my work. David Gibson has also been instrumental in my recent growth as a potter. The collages just happened over a period of years. I have fun making them. Mostly, I have no idea what I am going to do until I start working with the collages.

Some paintings may be for sale. Please discuss this with the artist. Hebrew Tabernacle receives a special donation from each purchase.

This exhibit will be open to all from March through April, 2013.

The Gold Wing Gallery is usually open M, W, F and Sat

Please call the synagogue office at 212-568-8304 to make sure.

Diana Douglas Discusses Her Art

This March and April, the collages and ceramics of one of our own Hebrew Tabernacle curatorial staff members, Diana Douglas, are featured in the Gold Wing Gallery exhibition. Diana has been making art most of her life. During high school, in Ojai California, she was tutored in pottery by the famed artist Beatrice Wood. Diana majored in art at Southampton College in Long Island, NY, where she was principally a photographer. She went on to work professionally as a photographer for the Watertown Times in Potsdam, New York.

In New York City, Diana pursued class work in counseling and education to become a creative arts therapist. She was clinically trained on the job, peer-trained, and supervised. She works off-ward in this capacity at Metropolitan Hospital. In creative arts therapy the art medium itself leads patients toward various forms of expression. Diana stresses her role with her patients as that of therapist, not teacher. According to Diana, a creative arts therapist is a facilitator, not an instructor looking for a result.

There may be a touch of the creative arts therapy sensibility in Diana's comment about her collages that she has no idea what she's going to do until she starts working. With her ceramic pieces she sets herself different problems to work on, often choosing to connect diverse elements. Some work is hand-built and some is worked on the wheel. The pieces draw the viewer in with their tactile surface forms, asking to be touched. Her collages have a randomness that sometimes contrasts with the specific, evocative titles of the works. They radiate the gentle, forceful presence of Diana herself.

MISHLOACH MANOT FOR PURIM

contributed yummy home baked goods to include in the boxes.

A large part of the work involved packing the boxes with all of the delicious treats. Helpers included Cari Fershing, Burt and Henry Grayman, Rachel Kelk, Sam Kelleher, Joan Laufer, Alejandro Levine, Anna Levy, Rose Ellen Neidish, Shira and Susan Saar as well as Siena Stoller. Harriet Bailer made sure everything went smoothly with the distribution of the boxes at the Purim Carnival. Ruth Lilienstein in the office did a great job on the difficult task of taking the orders and creating labels for the boxes. Mike Klein was involved in every aspect of the Purim weekend, helping to shop twice for supplies, making salad for the Chai for a Pie dinner, and helping set up and clean up after the Purim Carnival. Denny and John Kelk, and a host of others, did a great job in making the Purim Carnival happen and the Hebrew School students were a tremendous hit in the annual Purim Spiel. The reading of the Megillah, the adult Purim Spiel written and coordinated by Rabbi Gale, and the Chai for a Pie dinner made for a special Purim evening on Saturday night.

This was truly a community effort and everyone who participated should be proud of what we accomplished! The true beneficiaries were those whose Purim holidays were made more special and the students of the Hebrew School; all the funds raised will be used in the school program. Here's hoping that we can all celebrate Purim and work together on the Mishloach Manot fundraiser again next year!

Peace, Shelly Koy, Hebrew School Principal
