SHERYL DENBO – Sculptural Canvases
Reflections

Artist's Statement:

“ I was born in Brooklyn and now spend four to six months each year in “Down East Maine” where I’m inspired by what I call, The Golden Hour; that time just after sunrise and before sunset when the daylight is subtle and the colors are both soft and deep. I return to my canvas and use intense, fluid metallic colors on papers and fabrics I get from around the world. The surface builds until it transcends its original structure.

When I focus on the ocean and the sky that surrounds me, I find myself painting what I call my AquaFlow and Reflections Series.

I’ve been influenced by many, but especially by my teachers Helen Corning and Bruce Dorfman. Both taught me to trust myself. The artists Gustav Klimt and Robert Rauschenberg taught me, among other things, not be afraid of kitsch.”
