IN THE DARK TIMES,
THERE WILL STILL BE WEAVINGS
Elizabeth Starčević

Artist's statement: I learned to weave in Mexico more than 30 years ago and most of my work has been done there.

I work on a standing loom and do wall hangings inspired by: my travels, art, family and social and political events.

You can see my work on permanent display at City College, York College, and the NYC Career Center in Washington Heights.

I have exhibited in Mexico, the United States, Canada and Spain.

When I retired from teaching Spanish at City College, City University of New York, my family, my friends and a grant from the Northern Manhattan Arts Alliance -NOMAA, made it possible for me to have a large loom in New York and to weave here.

The pieces in this exhibit reflect. They bear witness to racist and homophobic violence and also the strong social upheaval during Covid. They also reflect a personal dark time for me.

Please leave a comment about my weavings. You can find others at: www.estarweaver.com Please contact me at: starcny@aol.com
