Elissa Gore – Painter

Now for something completely different ...

With interpretive poetry by Elddry Castillo

Artist's Statement:

I have been a professional landscape painter for the past 40 years. My paintings are in over 60 public collections, as well as in solo and group shows. Many of my paintings are large and some are quite small. But all my work has been rooted in direct observation of the natural world and moments of transcendent feeling.

In the past nine months I began experimenting with non-objective painting & more expressive brushwork. I share this new work with you in context of work that preceded it.

My representational work is carefully designed. I use unusual formats (like the long panorama,) asymmetrical compositions, and color tension to capture your interest.

I have started applying the same principles to paintings that are less descriptive of place and more descriptive of feeling. I hope that you will see a common feeling of space, light and color in all of them.

From the poem:

Finding Space

*Here, in the distance,
the silence speaks
and in its gentle echo,
I find myself.*
